Second and third alarms were turned in by the firemen, who devoted all their attention to saving the adjoining property. In a few moments, as the clang of the engines was heard from every direction, Fution street presented an exciting scene. Men were rushing about scantily clad, in a highly excited state. They had been sleeping in the cheap lodging-houses in the neighborhood. There are four or five lodging-houses on the block. The firemen notified the proprietors to turn out their guests, but most of them had rushed into the street upon the arrival of the first engine. Many of them, thinking sheir place was on fire rushed into the street and dressed on the sidewalk.

The quick work of the nremen, however, prevented the flames from spreading to the lodging-houses. The fire was entirely out at 5 o'clock this morning.

Manager Strachan cald that he could not account for the origin of the fire. The men were busy yesterday texting the ovens in the building, which were heated to 500 degrees Fahrenheit.

The offices in the front of the building were not damaged by fire or water. There were over one hundred men employed in the biscuit works, and they will be thrown out of employment for some time.
